Absoft bolsters higher-education market standing

Specialist software consultant Absoft said yesterday it had bolstered its position in the UK's higher-education market.

The Aberdeen-based firm has been appointed as a preferred supplier by the SAP Higher Education and Research User Group.

The move has already resulted in Absoft securing two five-figure contracts with the Leicester University and City University in London to provide SAP software-support services.

Absoft managing director Ian Mechie said: "We already have more than 10 years' experience in this area, but this paves the way for us to increase our client portfolio significantly in a key market for us."
